Membership categories and related annual dues

Student	$ 25
Individual	75
Supporting	100
Institutional/Corporate	250
Benefactor	2,500

Institutional members include companies, universities & colleges, museums, industry organizations, and government departments. Members applying for this category should state the person entitled to receive all publications and communications.

Institutional and Benefactor members will be recognized in all branch publications and at all events.

Members will receive quarterly newsletters and the twice-yearly CHS Journal, and will be eligible to attend annual meetings and other programs at reduced rates

Membership is open to all who are interested in furthering the study and exploration of the history of construction as defined by the Society's objectives. Our membership includes academics, professionals, and amateurs with interests in all aspects of construction history.

Your annual dues include membership in both the American branch and the international Construction History Society.

Memberships are annual regardless as to when dues are paid. However members joining after mid-year will be sent newsletters issued during the year.
